Funeral Chapel To Be Finished In Four Weeks

"The Griggs-Warren Funeral Chapel is about half way through the construction stage," announced Bernard Warren late last week. He added that the big part of the construction work was done and that the men were now working on the slow and tedious finish work.

The chapel will join the former funeral home which had only small facilities for conducting funerals. The work has been in progress for the past three weeks and due to the nature of the work to be done may be four weeks more in completion.

A new electric Hammond organ has already been purchased but has not been installed. The installation will come when the building is properly finished. Delivery of the oak pews is expected within the next three weeks.

Chapel portion of the Funeral Home that is being added is 2200 feet. Mr. Warren said the workers should get the Chapel finished in about four weeks. All of the walls that are to be sheetrocked are up and sheetrock applied. Workmen are now perfortaping the walls and getting them ready for the textone finish.

Drouth Holds On With Only Light Rain in Sept.

September was another dry month. Only .50 of an inch of moisture was received during the month, this falling on Sept. 2.

The moisture so far for 1953 totals 11.15 inches, due largely to local showers which hit Canyon but escaped many other sections of the county. The only month of the year during which normal summer rains fell was August, when the moisture measured 4.45 inches in Canyon.

The weather bureau at Amarillo, stationed at the airport, has received only 6 inches of rain for 1953, but this was about the smallest amount of moisture received in the Panhandle.

Wheat planted following the August moisture is good in some parts of Randall county, but poor in other sections.

A dry norther hit the Panhandle Saturday, but brought no moisture.

Morelock Writes Of Visit to City During Last Week

Alpine, Tex., Sept. 29

Last week my wife and I, after a 14 year absence, motored to Canyon for a visit with Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill, to meet other friends of bygone days, and to get renewed inspiration from the 13 years I taught English at West Texas State. But, I discovered that time had wrought a change in keeping with modern progress.

It was difficult for me to "find my way about." The beautiful new homes, the expanded and improved business area, and the amply lighted and paved streets give Canyon distinction among cities of its size. It presents an unmistakable appearance of progress and a high quality of citizenship.

A college plant second to none in appearance and functional perfection represents the day dreams and night planning of Dr. J. A. Hill over a period of 30 years as president of West Texas State. What a monument to wise thinking and unselfish service! In many buildings I saw physical "markers" as evidence of student and citizen devotion to a great leader.

Perhaps the most unique memorial on the campus is the Museum, said to be the first of its kind south of Mason and Dixon line (at least on a college campus) and ranking in importance with the best in the United States. The artistic and well appointed chapel is a living community monument to a great man and an impressive symbol of the ideals that underpin the college itself.

It is my conviction, based upon many years of experience in the field of higher education and my recent survey of West Texas State, that the people of Canyon and Northwest Texas have in their midst an institution of greater importance than they probably realize. The varied and outstanding achievements of its ex-students in all parts of the nation bear eloquent testimony to the quality of its service and bespeak for it an even more glorious future under the guidance of a young and vigorous administration.

Horace W. Morelock,
President Emeritus,
Sul Ross State College

FORMER CITIZEN DIES

J. Lyman Davis recently died in Tucson, Ariz., and his body was returned to his home in McKinney for burial. He was a student in the Canyon high school in 1918 and worked for C. R. Burrow.

Miss Pam McDonald of Kermit spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan McDonald.

Fisher Wins $37 On 10% Ticket

Melba Fisher won $37 in Saturday's drawing on a 10% ticket. Her ticket was the third one drawn, the other two people were either not present or didn't answer to their names.

Roland Black, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said next week's treasure chest would contain $400. A 50% ticket could get some lucky person $200 at that time.

Treasure chest drawings began on September 5th and with Saturday's drawing a total of $329 has been given away. The drawings are conducted each Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the bandstand on the east side of the square.

Umbarger 4-H Club Boys in Local Contest

Umbarger 4-H Club boys are now ready to measure their corn and grain sorghums in the production contest. In the contest the 4-H boys are growing one acre of grain sorghum of any variety and one acre of hybrid corn.

They are competing with each other in the club and the boy making the highest yield on the one acre of corn will receive $10. The same amount will be paid for best grain sorghum.

Competition is keen and several of the boys have high yielding acres. It will be two or three weeks before the last of the fields will be ready to harvest.

Two Assistants of District Attorney Quit After Being Fired by Robinson

Citizens of the 47th District were aroused by the sudden resignation of Deane Watson and Gib Howard as Assistant District Attorneys last Thursday morning after they had been handed 30-day notices of their dismissal by the newly appointed District Attorney A. J. Robinson.

There has been a constant barrage against District Attorney and District Judge Henry S. Bishop in the Amarillo daily newspapers as the result of the trade-out whereby two murderers, Earl George Robertson and Joseph Paul Lucas, were given life sentences in District court in Canyon on Monday of last week. It was claimed by the new district attorney that a jury could not be secured in Randall county that would give the men more than life sentences.

None of the peace officers were consulted by the district attorney before a swap-out was made whereby the men added life imprisonment sentences to previous convictions.

According to investigations in Austin the two men may apply for pardons after they have served 15 years in the penitentiary.

Sheriff L. S. Johnston returned the two men to Huntsville Monday afternoon after Judge Bishop had passed sentence on them in District court in Amarillo.

Judge E. E. Jordan of Potter county is considering the matter of running against Judge Bishop next year. So far no one has announced against Robinson although several attorneys are considering the possibilities. So far Assistant District Attorney A. W. Lair has made no statement regarding his future in the office of Robinson and none has been made by the district attorney.

Newspaper Week Is Observed by the Canyon Rotary Club

Clyde Warwick spoke at the 18th Annual Newspaper Week program of the Canyon Rotary Club Tuesday. Warwick is one of two charter members of the Club, the other being Dr. J. A. Hill.

Newspaper Week is observed for the purpose of pointing out to the public the fact that America has the best newspapers in the world, but the publishers are not satisfied. They are spending millions of dollars to improve their papers, stated Warwick.

The second part of the program was devoted to an ad-quiz upon slogans which had been adopted by well known firms. Joe Bailey won a prize of a book for the largest number of correct answers to the quiz.

Supt. Joe Gibson of the Canyon Schools introduced a senior, Chas. Boling, who talked on Fire Prevention. Cleanliness in stores, offices and plants add to the dignity of workers and to their satisfaction with their jobs. 10,000 lives were lost and $500,000,000 worth of property was destroyed in this country last year.

Visitors were: Arthur Bluhm, Van H. Allm, C. R. McAtee, Roy P. Eastland, J. J. Sanders, Joe Rogers, all of Amarillo; Geo. Heard of Hereford; Dan Daniels of Lubbock; Charles Taylor of Pasadena, Calif.

Man Draws Pen Sentence in District Court

Ed Fisher drew a sentence in the penitentiary Thursday for theft in the west section of Randall county. He drew two years and will be taken to the pen when the two young criminals are returned who drew life sentences last week.

Three boys were given suspended sentences on a grand jury indictment for selling stolen property. They plead guilty.

A grand jury adjourned until Friday, Oct. 31.

A special venire was called for Nov. 2 when J. W. Gould will be tried on a charge of rape.

Ice Makes Its Debut Monday

There was some ice in Canyon Monday and Tuesday mornings! Not enough of a freeze to do any damage because of the continued drouth, but enough of a freeze to tie up hose on the lawns.

If there had been moisture there was enough freeze to do a lot of damage to growing vegetation, but as conditions prevailed, no damage resulted to the gardens, flowers and lawns.

Markham Family Visits Lubbock

Dr. J. L. Markham and family will be in Lubbock all day Saturday where Dr. Markham will attend the Panhandle Veterinarian's Association meeting that day. One of the highlights of the meeting will be a discussion of veterinary business. In addition to discussion there will be two speakers. Dr. W. W. Armistead will speak about the small animal. Dr. Easly, an authority on sterility, will speak on that subject.

Must Register Cars at Home

A ruling as printed in The Canyon News last week has been changed by the State.

All cars must be registered in the county where the buyer lives. There is no choice about the county of registration as stated last week.

If a resident of Randall county buys a car in some other county, he cannot be talked into registering in that county, just to help out the dealer. He must register the car in Randall county.

Neither does it matter where he gets his car financed, if he placed a mortgage on the car. When he buys the car and places a plaster on the car, he must register it in Randall county.

The state is filing suits against those who have registered their cars in some other county than their residence, so owners had as well get busy and straighten out the tangle without the necessity of paying a fine.

Juvenile Problem Becomes More and More Acute in City

Deputy Sheriff Lem Pounds said yesterday that the juvenile cases and the cases against youth of the community were on the increase.

He pointed to three boys in the late teens who were tried in District Court and convicted of theft. They drew suspended sentences.

Another boy, a juvenile, was in the same crowd and drew a suspended sentence in County Court.

A mere boy was charged with attempted rape Sunday. He was from Post and his intended victim was from parts unknown. She had no home, therefore, could not be called upon to testify in court. The charge of rape was changed to theft of clothing.

A battery from one of the school buses was missing Monday. It was discovered on the car of a high school youth.

A man driving a pick-up filed charges against a boy who had shot his machine with a .22 pistol Sunday. The boy was arrested yesterday by officers.

"We are tired of trying to reason with boys and they will be taken to court at once," stated Mr. Pounds.

One of the worst cases originated in South Amarillo where Sheriff L. S. Johnston and one of his deputies were called the other night. The woman of the house had her clothing badly torn by her son-in-law. She stated that he attempted to rape her twice, but would file no charges. Her husband was on the bed, pretty well saturated with beer. The Sheriff told the couple that unless they were willing to file charges of rape that he would bring the young man to Canyon and file a charge of DWI. The man spent last week in jail, but made bond Saturday night.

Officers have been jumping sideways trying to keep up with law infractions in Randall county.

BROTHER DIES

Mrs. J. J. Walker received word Tuesday that her brother, W. W. Lock, died in Corono, Calif., Monday night. Mr. Lock, who was 88 years old, had been in ill health for some time. A heart attack was the immediate cause of his death. Mrs. Walker was unable to attend the funeral.

EVETTS HALEY HOME

J. Evetts Haley was brought to his home in Canyon Sunday following the accident when he broke his leg on his Oklahoma ranch two weeks ago.

Mrs. Haley says that he is very weak from the accident but is getting along as well as could be expected.

John F. Taylor returned Wednesday from California and Washington where he was called by the death of his brother. He visited with many old friends while in the two states.

Applications Are Being Taken For Drouth Feed in Randall Co.

The Randall County Drouth committee received instructions Monday for reopening the Drouth Emergency Feed Program.

Thirteen cars of feed were ordered immediately. In the meantime new application forms are being prepared and will be ready Thursday, October 8, for farmers' signatures.

The Randall County PMA office will receive applications Thursday, Friday and until noon Saturday of this week and thereafter on Monday through Friday of each week.

The new program is on a somewhat more restricted basis of distribution compared to the previous feed program.

All applications now on file will be cancelled. Each livestock owner will file a new application for each 30 day period for a 30 day supply. Eligible producers who do not need the feed until later should not file applications at this time.

Dial Telephones To Start by End Month

October 31 will be dial day for Canyon.

"Canyon's new dial telephone system will be placed in operation at midnight, October 31," A. O. Thomas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company district manager, announced.

Final preparations for the cutover to dial are now being made, Thomas said. Installers have placed most of the equipment into position in the new dial telephone building and are engaged in hand soldering the thousands of connections necessary for the equipment to function.

"This is a slow, tedious task which will require time to complete," Thomas explained. "Then it will be necessary to run intensive tests and to make the final adjustments to insure that the equipment is functioning properly."

Meanwhile, many additional tasks remain to be completed. New dial telephone numbers must be assigned to every telephone in Canyon.

"Each telephone will receive a five digit dial telephone number," the telephone company spokesman said. "The telephone numbers now being used will not be useable after midnight, October 31."

"We hope this number change will not cause any great inconvenience to our subscribers," Thomas said. "Changing to five digit numbers is a necessarp part of the dial conversion program."

New telephone directories listing all the new dial numbers also will be distributed prior to the cutover. These and many more tasks must be completed before Canyon's dial system can be placed in operation.

Thomas said the actual cutover operation will take but a few seconds. At midnight, October 31, the cables leading to the old manual switchboards will be cut and the installation workers will remove a series of blocks from the new dial equipment at a given signal.

"When this signal is given, it will mark the culmination of all our efforts to provide Canyon subscribers with modern dial telephone service," he added.

Hud Prichard, long-time employee of Southwestern Bell, is amply proud of the new building and system which is being installed, just east of the West Texas Gas office. The lot of 60 feet frontage has a modern new fireproof building, and the installation of the new system is a thing of beauty. Hud says that he knows very little about the new dial system, but he can sure tell the visitors how operations will be carried on after installation is started.

There will be no operators in Canyon. Long distance calls and information will be handled from Amarillo.

There will be no more grabbing up the phone and telling central to ring "John Jones" or "Bill Smith," or some other number. Each operator must take time to look up the number he wishes to dial, and then dial the number correctly. The vast acres of wires in the central office will go to work and make immediate connections.

The only employes of the local system will be two girls in the office, together with four or five men to keep the operations going.

The new system is capable of carrying 1800 telephones, which is an increase of 300 over the present system.

An emergency engine is placed in a small annex to the building in order to provide power in case of failure of Southwestern Public Service power, such as was experienced in the ice storm.

New School Building Plans

Plans for a 24 room elementary school building, to be constructed on the property owned by the Canyon Independent School District in the south part of Canyon, continue to be studied by the Board of Education. The Board feels that as a result of the study by the Citizens Committee last spring and the subsequent study by the School Board, that the most urgent need at present is in the elementary part of the schools.

The building program, now being studied, will include some remodeling on the present high school and present elementary building so as to care for the junior high school and high school on the present campus.

The School Board and architect are working on the many details of the program and as soon as a complete picture of the building program is worked out, it will be presented in detail to the patrons of the school district.

Couple Celebrates 67th Anniversary Next Wednesday

MR. AND MRS. W. F. BARNARD

Next Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Barnard, 1107 4th Avenue, celebrate their 67th wedding anniversary. Barnard says that during this 67 years of married life the couple has had only one quarrel. He says Mrs. Barnard came to him on her hands and knees saying, "Come out from under that bed, you coward!"

At their 67th anniversary he is 86 and she is 83. The couple was born and reared in north Alabama. When he was 19 and she was 16 they were married in their home state of Alabama.

Even with their childhood and early youth being spent in Alabama the couple are still Texas pioneers. They were married in 1886 and five years later, in 1891, they came to Texas. Their first Texas home was at Waco where they stayed for a period of nine years. In 1900 they moved from Waco to Abilene.

At this time Abilene was a typical Texas frontier town. The Barnards remained there 20 years. In 1920 they moved to Lubbock and Mr. Barnard went to work helping to dig the basement for the first Texas Technological College buildings.

After three years in Lubbock the family moved into this vicinity. They moved on a farm a short distance east of Happy in 1923 and 15 years later they came to Canyon where they have lived ever since.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnard have raised nine boys and four girls of their own and one orphan. At present they have 37 grandchildren, 45 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Two of the boys were in the first World War and two were in the second World War. All four of the boys returned home safely. In World War II the Barnards had a total of 14 grandchildren and relatives in service. One grandson has returned safely from the Korean War.

The Army Objects to Mothers Pleading With Commie Sons

Mothers who have sons in Korea who have declared in favor of the Commies and will not return home have volunteered and are urged by various groups in America to go to Korea and talk to their sons. The Army objects, and therefore the mothers will not make the trip.

Perhaps the idea of leaving the soldiers to their own decision may be a good thing. The Army argues that pressure would result if the mothers made the trip. The brass does not wish to see such a thing happen. If and when the men return, they want it to be a free will movement. In such a manner if the men make up their minds voluntarily, they will be able to throw off the yoke of the commies, and come back free of commie influence.

Perhaps no one knows or appreciates the torture and agony which was undergone by the men as they were held prisoners. They lived in a man-made hell and are not to be condemned too severely for having fallen for some sort of relief, as vague or uncertain as it might have been.

One thing is sure and certain, our government is trying to play the game fairly, and this is something that the commies have never done and cannot be trusted to do in the future.

Fred M. Vinson Left Small Estate To His Family

Most Americans were given a genuine shock when it was revealed that the late Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Fred M. Vinson, left such a small inheritance, less than $5,000.

Here was a man who had devoted his life to the service of his country.

He had served his country well in many capacities.

No doubt he lived well during this long period of time, perhaps much better than the average man of his acquaintance.

Maybe he taught his family the high ideals which he possessed, and with that a lesson that men of high estate must live well. They will miss his income, now that he is dead, but may have learned a lesson which the hard knocks of economy will be unable to erase.

From this point of view, we learn the lesson that public servants, those who put the value of service above self, will not profit from their work or from the high esteem of their fellow men.

It would be a shame if Mr. Justice Vinson has not better prepared for the future of his family than the present facts indicate.

Earl Warren of California Is A Good Man From the Ranks

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court will be the Honorable Earl Warren, former Governor of California, and the first man to hold the job without long and successful legal experience. While he has been a lawyer all of his life, he has been in politics more than he has practiced law.

His selection for the post by President Eisenhower has met with general approval, even among the Democrats of the nation. He will be approved for the post as soon as Congress convenes.

Perhaps we have a new area in all lines. College presidents who are not educators are heading big educational institutions; a general with no political background is elected President of the United States; men who are capable in other lines are being shifted to important posts without previous training.

It begins to look like all old adages have fallen by the wayside. We are not specialists as hitherto, but are training men for more than one job.

This may be a good thing, after all.

Look, No Parking Meters! Declares Visiting News Man

Ernest Joiner, publisher of The Ralls Banner paid a social call at The Canyon News office, and came up with this declaration:

Canyon, Tex., must be a good town.

It has Clyde Warwick and probably the best weekly newspaper in Texas.

It also has no parking meters downtown to further deplete resources of tax-ridden motorists. There are no mechanical bandits every 10 feet. There are no policemen hovering around to slap a fine on overparked cars. There may be a reason for free streets in Canyon. In the first place, the streets have probably been paid for a half-dozen times by car owners. In the second place, we suspect merchants have more regard for their patrons than to add to their petty annoyances through use of the parking meters.

If we ever get chased out of Ralls (also no parking meters) we hope we can land in Canyon where piracy has not yet been legalized on city streets.

Parking Meters on Hotel Lot

We have never been unduly alarmed over these nickel bandits which they call parking meters, but we ran across a new kind the other day.

It was in the private parking lot of a hotel in an adjoining city where nickel grabbers had been installed. A sign over the meter told the car owners that the installation was there to help the city finance such and such a project.

It was admitted by the presence of the sign that the customers would not be asked if they did not drop in a nickel for each hour's parking; but by the presence of the meters it was assumed that patrons of the hotel would help the city with its financial obligations, in spite of the high tariff collected by the hotel.

Such banditry!

Let Liquor Men Pay Expenses

There is a string of cases being tried in every county of Texas every week with men and women charged with Driving While Intoxicated. The officers refer to the cases as DWI.

Just why should the rank and file citizens; the men and women who never touch the stuff; be penalized for those who like to get in their car and take a drink of the deadly poison?

When we get down to brass tacks and decide that something radical must be done, suppose that we place the blame where it belongs and tax the makers and handlers of the stuff for the damage which they are inflicting upon society?

Three Men Give Version of What Is Wrong With World

We were fortunate to have the privilege of listening in on a conversation the other day between men who are in position to know much more than we have learned.

One man asserted that the world can never recover from its ills until a strong man or woman arises who has the power to control world affairs.

Another one said that he could not believe the first declaration that the job was for one man dictatorship. He did not believe that a dictator could ever get control of a nation like America. That the only reason Russia was such a powerful nation today, if it really is, hidden behind the iron curtain, was the mistakes of America in giving Russia so much control over such a valuable territory.

A third man settled the argument with the declaration that Christianity was the only solution of the ills of the world. That he could not conceive of a God who would give the people all of the benefits of the world and then go away to allow the mistakes of mankind to wreck the whole creation. He believes that in spite of the cussedness of man right now that a strong religious tendency would soon sweep the world to settle the differences between man and nations.

We remained quiet because we have no solution to th problems of the day. We are in a terrible mess, the best that we can see.

Too Many Generals in the Army Is Declaration of Investigators

Civilians who look into the matter declare that America has too many generals in the armed forces. The high brass is entirely out of proportion to the number of enlisted men, so they declare.

Don't become too excited about the situation. We are likely to have more generals than we need just now, but let it be remembered that few men are in uniform just because they are killers. Most of them are in uniform in order to offer up their lives in battle for those of us who are too old or too decrepit to fight. These fellows are carrying the defense of the nation upon their shoulders.

When peace comes, there is always a demand that high officers stay in uniform as long as possible in order to clear up the rubbish of the past war. We have learned that we cannot build a strong army without trained military leaders.

Just keep in mind the fact that no peace has been declared following World War II, and that World War III is predicted to start within months. No wonder we keep strong and trained leaders in uniform!

Annual Newspaper Week Comes October 1-8; No Special Edition

This is the annual Newspaper Week.

While The Canyon News has devoted an entire section to this event in years past, we do not have the time for such a section this year. As a result of this condition, we are merely trying to publish as good an edition as possible, with information scattered throughout the regular 16-page edition of our paper.

The News has won few prizes this year, and therefore we are not going to do a lot of bragging as usual on our accomplishments.

These are busy and rather uncertain and trying times for any one in business in general, and in the newspaper game in particular.

So be it!

Silly Words Of The Week!

Here is this week's allotment of words which some wise guy has thought up:

Bank: An institution where you can borrow money if you can present sufficient evidence to show that you have the collateral and really don't need the money.

Bigimist: One who makes the same mistake twice in a row.

Bore: One who insists upon talking about himself while you are waiting and anxious to talk about yourself.

Bridge: A card game in which a good deal depends upon a good deal.

Broadway: A place where people spend money that they haven't earned to buy things which they do not need in order to impress people that they do not like.

Etc., etc., etc.

Organized minorities have introduced the bloc system in this country and threaten to make impossible the operation of a national government dealing with the general welfare.

The white collar class is usually the first to feel the pinch of the high cost of living; this was so in the Twenties, but the white collar class hasn't done much about it.

People who plan for their future usually succeed better than those who do not, but there is no law which requires you to make such plans.

It's time for another football season, and some grandstand cheering, which somehow never gets very far above the moronic level.

Women who lavish affections upon pets will tell you that some of them have more sense than human beings.

Reformation of the human race proceeds slowly and is not helped much by the habit of denouncing the sinners.

You may have noticed that the man of integrity seldom delivers a lecture upon the virtues of integrity.

Most people will sell what they own for a good profit even if the income taxes take most of the gain.

It is getting so now that a man finds it very hard to find the time to keep up with his work.

An idea is one thing; putting it into words so that everybody will understand it, is another.

Now that the schools are running full blast, we presume the level of intelligence will move up.

Never be afraid of what other people say if you are sure that you approve what you have done.

HIS REAL NAME

Norman, Okla. — Officials of the University of Oklahoma suspected a prank when they found among the freshmen one named Never Fail. A check, however, proved he was a real live freshman, who had never failed in high school. The youth is the son of Mrs. Frances Fail, Oklahoma City, and Never M. Fail, Sr., Memphis, Tenn.

MISSING MEETING

"There are so many rude interruptions, Mr. Chairman," complained the speaker, "that I can hardly hear myself speak."

"Don't let it bother you," piped up a voice from the rear. "You're not missing anything."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"Thankful," grumbled the sourpus to the sunshine spreader. "What have I got to be thankful for? Why I can't even pay my bills."

"In that case," prompted the other, "be thankful that you aren't one of your creditors."

THE EDIBLE LOOK

D-DAY DENOTED

Attorney General Brownell says he inherited a Justice Department full of dissidents, dwellers and deadheads. The solution is simple: He should dismiss, discharge and discard them.

BAD CONNECTION

Senator Jenner, emerging from a GOP policy committee session to discuss how to avoid duplication in Senate probing, explained: "They just wanted to be sure there was no duplicity between the committees."

Kick-off Meeting Of New Dairymen Association Held

Approximately 50 dairymen from Randall, Potter, and Swisher counties met Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 in the 47th District Court room of the Randall County courthouse in a kick-off meeting of the Tri-State Milk Producer's Association.

This was the first of a series of meetings to be held throughout the Amarillo Milkshed this week.

Principal speaker was M. C. Jaynes, organization and marketing specialist of the Extension service at Texas A&M, and R. P. Mayfield, director of the Central West Texas Milk Producers Association.

Function of a producer's association, objectives, and problems were discussed near the close of the meeting. Louis Hinders, Canyon dairyman and temporary president of the Tri-State Producer's Association, asked for an expression of opinion from those dairymen present as to the need and willingness to join the organization. Every dairyman at the meeting gave a vote of confidence to the new organization and the enrollment procedure started.

Earlier in the day a committee of the Tri-State Producers had met to draw up a charter and by-laws for the permanent organization. Methods of electing officers and directors, and organization finances were discussed and settled.

County Agent John Brazzil said "There are about 400 dairymen producing milk that goes through the Amarillo markets. The dairymen are only interested in getting their share of the consumer's dollar that is paid for milk."

Outstanding 4-H Club Girls Named

Names of outstanding 4-H girls in the county have just been released by Miss Lou Ella Patterson, County Home Demonstration Agent who is head of all girl's 4-H work in the county.

Outstanding senior girl, who has been named Gold Star Girl for the year is Bernice Grabber who lives at Rt. 1, Canyon. Bernice has been in 4-H for five years, and during this time has been active in participation in local and district 4-H camps, the county dress revues and county bake shows. In 1952, she was one of six 4-H'ers who attended the Junior Leadership Training Laboratory at Bastrop from District One, and since then has been active in local leadership and in planning and executing county-wide recreation.

Bernice works actively on 4-H in her home, and at the present time is making a wool suit under the leadership of her older sister, Mary Grabber, who is teaching a tailoring class.

This year for the first time a 4-H girl under 12 years of age is being honored. To be eligible for this recognition, she must have entered both the County Dress Revue and the County Bake Show. This year's winner is Evelyn Hoffman, who is 10 years old and lives near Umbarger. Although this is her first year in 4-H, Evelyn has been very active in both sewing and cooking projects. She has made five garments, two of which were entered in the County Dress Revue, and won a blue ribbon on her sponge cake and a red ribbon on her cherry pie at the County Bake Show. She has also helped with the family canning and freezing.

Evelyn is receiving a five dollar savings account with the American National Bank in Amarillo. Art Brally, vice-president in charge of agriculture, promises that they will watch her work in 4-H club and encourage her in every way possible.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Myers of Lubbock visited with Mrs. W. S. Myers over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Winter of Limon, Colo., are visiting this week in the A. H. Hutton home.

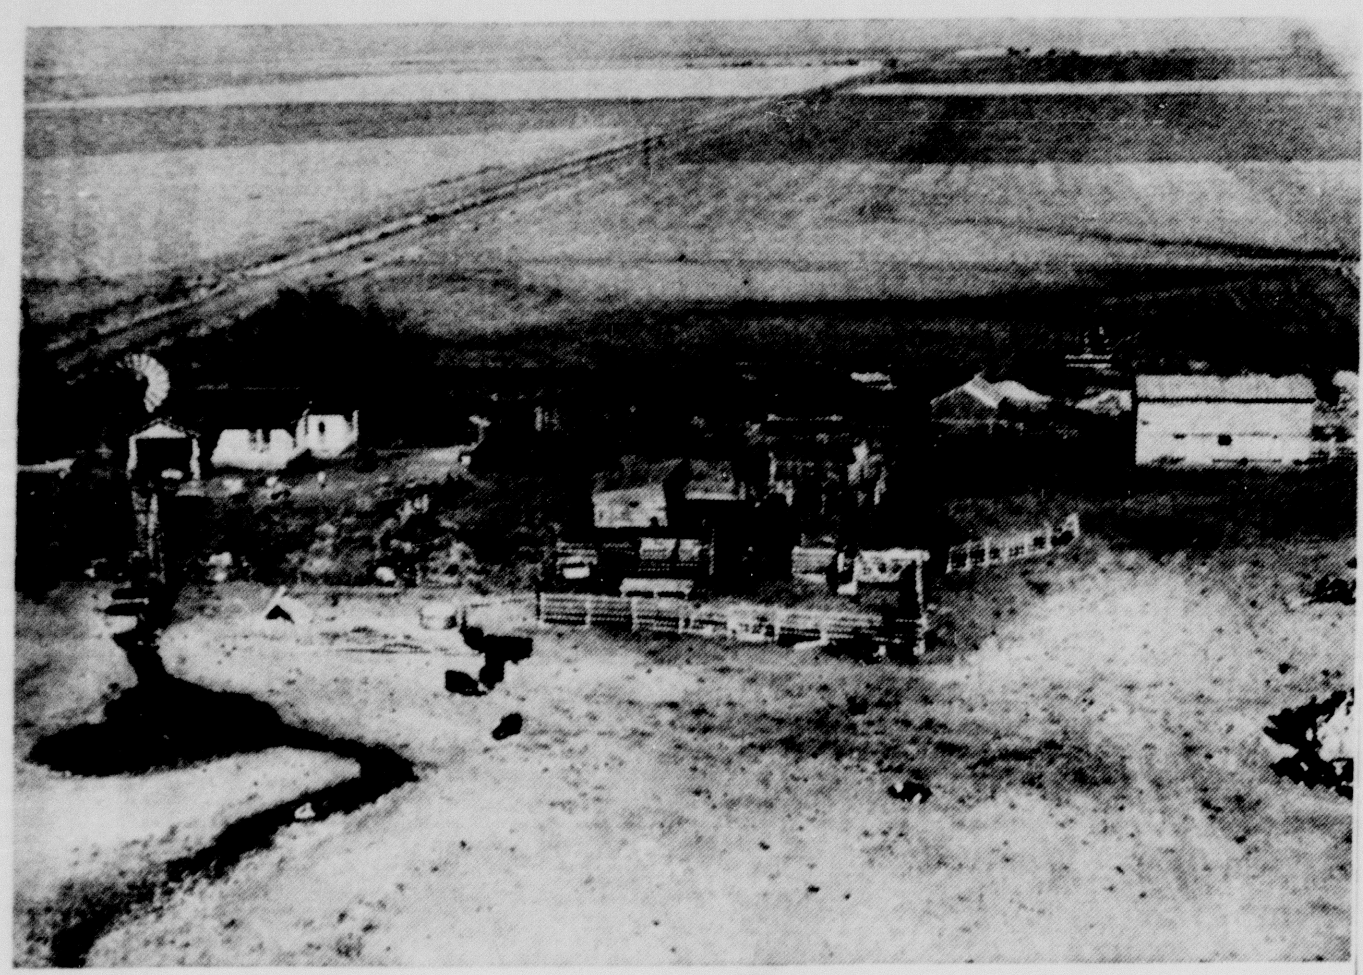
Who Is Owner of "The Mystery Farm" of This Week



Mystery Farm Number 28, with its windmill and pool of water in the foreground, shows no signs of the drouth suffered during the summer months. The road going by the farm and location of the buildings should give an excellent clue to the farm's identity. Do you know whose it is? A 5x7 gloss photograph will be given the owner free when he calls at The News office and identifies the place. If you know who owns the place you may be the first to break the news to him that his is the Mystery Farm featured in this week's Canyon News.

LIPSTICK LOGIC
BY LOUISE ALLEN

Children, we read recently, are a constant worry to parents.

Seems the Children's Bureau has come up with figures to prove what we already know — that disease and accident lurk around every corner to nip off our kiddies. What the report doesn't show is that once we get them past the threat of diseases and mayhem, we worry even more:

About personality traits; about their I. Q.; whether they're going to be too big or too little to hold their own among their friends; what kind of mates they'll select.

We're so busy worrying about them that we lose sight of an equally important fact: Parents are a constant worry to children, too!

From the way they hold the nursing bottle so a fellow can't swallow the milk fast enough, to the way they take over the grandchildren, parents are in the hair of their offspring:

The way they leave home without saying how long they'll be gone, or else the way they stay longer than they said. The way they don't like dogs in the house. The way they won't have his favorite dishes but once a week instead of every day.

Then when a child grows up enough to get used to some of these things, he worries about being left an orphan because Pop drives too fast (Mom says so); about going to the poorhouse because Mom buys too many hats (Pop says so).

Yes sir, on behalf of all good children, who put only those things in their mouths that Mama approves; who won't chase a ball out into the street, or cross over without holding somebody's hand; who never park their tricycles in the neighbor's drive and never throw rocks at the neighbor's cat, we'd like to speak: This business of worry goes both ways!

NIXON'S FAR EAST TOUR

The fundamental purpose of Vice President Nixon's forthcoming tour of the Far East is to "discover, to anticipate and to reduce" points of latest friction with the United States. His 38,000 mile plane trip, which begins on October 6th, is to dramatize unmistakably to the world that the Eisenhower Administration's foreign policy is to put Asia on a par with Europe.

PLEA BACKFIRES

Erwin, N. C. — David Avery was one of the Hartnett county grand jury which successfully plead for the employment of additional rural policemen by the county. One of the first jobs of the increased force was to pounce on Avery as the farmer tended two 400-gallon stills. He was charged with illegally manufacturing liquor.

DOG BITES COPTER

Tulsa, Okla. — Tuffy, a pet bulldog, living up to his name, attacked the whirling tail rotor of a heliocopter and damaged it to the extent of $1,500. Tuffy suffered only a broken leg and a nearly severed ear.

LUMBER KILLS BOY

Baltimore, Md. — The six-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Carman Rose, Goucher College's new assistant professor of Philosophy, was killed when a 100-pound pile of lumber fell on him while he was playing in a lot next door to his home.

WANT OLD WHISTLE

Wagoner, Okla. — The decision by the City Fathers to become modern and do away with the city whistle brought such a howl from residents that the aged whistle was reinstalled. Life again is normal, hereabouts, paced by five whistles a day.

Traffic Deaths Subject of Talk At Lions Club

The Lions Club program Wednesday consisted of a short talk by Highway Patrolman Cecil McNiel of Amarillo and a film on the recklessness of teen-age drivers. McNiel said last year there were 2,498 people killed in automobile accidents in Texas, an average of seven killed a day throughout the entire year. In fact, the speaker pointed out that only seven days out of the entire year of 1952 was the state of Texas totally free of traffic deaths.

He asked the support of the public and civic groups in helping to make this country safer, and he pledged the cooperation of the highway department toward this objective. McNiel had a map on which traffic fatalities were shown in Texas. The heaviest toll of human lives was taken in the metropolitan areas such as Houston and Dallas.

After the speech was made a movie was shown which showed the results of fast speeding by teen-agers in their so-called hot-rods. "Teenicide" was a word described in the movie as the result of reckless speeding by teen-agers.

The Lions indulged in their usual frolicking with Clark Jarnagin and Buff Morris. Morris explained that to get out of the Lions Club the members should properly write a letter of resignation. Lion W. J. Wooten, Jr., promptly replied that he didn't believe that would work as he tried it once to get out of the Navy and Uncle Sam wouldn't accept it. Buff quickly came back with, "If you don't think it will work here, just try it."

NOT SO FUNNY

Gastonia, N. C. — A car, carrying two men and a woman, rushed up to the emergency entrance of a local hospital and the men rushed in to announce, "We've got a woman who's going to have a baby." Nurses hurriedly prepared the delivery room but when the woman was wheeled in, there was not the slightest sign of a baby. The three were arrested on drunkenness charges.

ALL BLIND

Newark, N. J. — Three persons prominently interested in the adoption of an 11-year-old girl, were blind. When Louis Wallace Grant, blind World War II veteran, appeared in court to adopt Letitia Bantum, the 11-year-old daughter of his blind wife, he was presented by a blind attorney.

AIR FORCE SAVINGS

A cut of $400,000,000 in defense spending will be possible because of a cutback in the purchase of jet engines for the Air Force. Secretary of Air Talbott announced that jet engines now have a longer-than-expected life and orders for spares have been cut accordingly. The size of the Air Force would not be affected, according to the Secretary, who said some of the savings would go into new engine types.

FEDERAL APPROPRIATIONS

Since 1872, when the House Appropriations Committee began keeping year - by - year statistics, Congress has appropriated $1,162,000,000,000 — well over half of it to the military. More than half of the staggering total was appropriated during the last ten years, with the all-time high being the $147,000,000,000 allotted in 1942. the first full year of World War II.

INDUSTRY PROFITS

Profits of U. S. industry for the first six months of this calendar year were the second highest in the history of the nation. In the second quarter, the output of goods and services ran at a record annual rate of $372,000,000,000, a gain of $37,000,000,000 over the annual rate the year before.

"EXPEDITED LETTERS"

The proposal to replace 3 - cent first class letters and 6 - cent air mail letters with a 5 - cent "expedited letter service" is under study by the Postoffice Department. The goal would be overnight mail deliveries throughout the country and an end of the Postoffice Department's deficit.

DRAFT UP IN '54

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, recently announced that the draft outlook is for a steep increase in calls in the latter part of 1954, perhaps to as many as 50,000 to 60,000 men a month. The present rate of about 23,000 a month would probably be maintained until the end of this fiscal year, he said.

TARIFF REDUCTIONS

President Eisenhower has created an economic study group which will consider the proposal for mutual tariff reductions by the free nations. If successful, the plan would replace the present reciprocal trade program.

The shift in Iran to an anti-Communist regime has spurred the discussion of a Middle East alliance.

An all-service draft after July is predicted.

Recently, your columnist read Gene Fowler's "Beau James," the biography of Manhattan's dapper, clever, handsome mayor of the 1920's. Someone said of Jimmy Walker, "New York wore him in its lapel like a flower—and vice versa."

Walker was, to a great extent, the product of the times in which he lived—as who is not? To blame the genial Jimmy for his faults would be, to quote a Fowler expression, "as though a man blamed his shoes for taking him into a saloon."

When Walker was a state senator, a Tammany Hall leader died; and Jimmy, as well as other Democratic officials, attended the funeral. That night, Jimmy went to a night club. Next day, Al Smith undertook to rebuke him but Walker countered with, "You're mixed up; it was Jones who died—not me."

How one clever remark can undo the entire effect of a serious speech was demonstrated when a hearing was held before Al Smith, then governor, on a proposal to raise the 5-cent subway fare in New York City. A dignified and able attorney, DeLancey Nicoll, spoke for an hour and a half for the company's side. Smith then announced, "The mayor of the City of New York will now reply." Walker arose and said, "That was the longest ride I ever had on a Nicoll."

But the wisecracking Walker had his serious side, too. At the unveiling of a monument in Yankee Stadium to Miller Huggins, who had been manager of Babe Ruth & Company, Mayor Walker declared, "Fame is a comet that chases its own tail in the sky.

"It is much more important, when all else is over and one has gone through the narrow door from which there is no returning, to have been loved than to have been exalted."

New York loved Jimmy Walker.

COLLEGE DRAFT TESTS

The fourth series of college qualification tests will be held Nov. 19, 1953, and April 22, 1954, at more than 900 testing centers throughout the country, according to Selective Service announcement. Some 438,000 students already have taken the tests with about 162,000 deferred from the draft to finish their education. Some 500,000 will have taken the tests by next spring, it is forecast. Information about the tests can be obtained at local draft boards.

NEWS LETTER

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS of the 18th Congressional District

I will be back in Washington when you receive this letter. This is my first trip back since Congress adjourned.

The work in the office in Washington continues at a rapid pace, whether Congress is in session or not. As soon as I can get caught up with the work there, I will be back in the District.

There are a number of places in the District that I have not been able to visit because the time has been so short, but I expect to get to these places as soon as I return. This District is one of the largest in area in the United States. Traveling time from one town to another consumes a great amount of the time available for getting around.

I was in Nazareth recently and everyone had a wonderful time. Those folks have a fine meeting hall, and there was quite a crowd attending the gathering. There was a fine program of local talent before we got down to the business of discussing the local, state, national, and international problems.

The ride down there was certainly wonderful through a large part of the irrigated section. The complete contrast between this irrigated section and the dry land section is inconceivable. The drouth has completely burned up most of the dry land section, and the farmers there are up against some pretty touch obstacles. You can see the effects of the drouth even in the irrigated sections. Of course, the presence of water proves what could be done in the Panhandle country if we had more of it.

On Friday I went on a field trip with the fine group from Dumas. It is unbelievable when you drive into the countryside between Dumas and Sunray and view the tremendous crops that are being produced. These folks are highly progressive, and it is certainly reflected by the type of machinery they are using and the manner in which they are farming the land. As long as this kind of progress is shown, we need never worry about America going hungry.

The cattle people are tremendously upset about the failure of the Secretary of Agriculture to take some affirmative action to relieve the tragic situation that is present in the industry at this time. Many of them have stopped me on the street and have called me on the phone. They all feel that they have not been treated exactly fair.

They feel that they were led to believe that at least some temporary action would be taken that would enable them to hold on through the winter and be able to start growing out. However, many of them tell me that they now find themselves at the end of the rope and in worse condition than they were two or three months ago, when there was some promise of affirmative action being taken.

Frankly, I agree wholeheartedly with their attitude that they should not be held in suspended animation. If the Secretary of Agriculture intends to do anything, he should do it and not talk about what he is going to do in the future. Cattle cannot live on promises. If he does not intend to do anything, the cattle people are entitled to know it and know it now. Fence straddling on the proposition should be stopped and stopped immediately, because the problem is entirely too serious to be pushed around.

Following the installation of officers, the new Worthy Advisor introduced her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Cundiff, to the Assembly.

The program consisting of a poem, "If For Girls" by Sarah Colwell, and a piano solo by Alice Simms was presented. Dorothy Neblett, outgoing Worthy Advisor, was presented her Past Worthy Advisor's pin on behalf of the Assembly.

The new Worthy Advisor announced her colors, peach and silver, and "Faith" as her theme. To carry out her colors, the new Worthy Advisor and her installing officers wore wristlet corsages of peach roses accented with silver leaves.

The meeting was closed with a drill by the new officers and the singing of "My Rainbow." Following the installation refreshments were served by the outgoing officers to the Assembly and guests.

HEIRS SOUGHT

Evanston, Ill. — Tax officials have started a search for heirs of Mrs. Theresa Stoody Porter, about 80, in whose littered home they found stocks and bonds worth $240,000 and also $47,000 in a bank vault. She is thought to have no relatives closer than third or fourth cousins.

BABY DROWNS IN PAIL

Salome, Ariz. — A couple, Mr. and Mrs. Gabbery, stopped for a cup of coffee at Salome. They left their infant son asleep on the front seat, a bucket of water they had brought along to use on an ailing radiator was on the floorboards below. When they returned to the car about ten minutes later, they found the baby, head down in the bucket.

Cars Kill Many Pedestrians Who Walk Incorrectly

"Night must fall, but must countless pedestrians in Texas fall with it?"

That question was asked today by Col. E. B. Tilley of Houston, president of the Texas Safety Association as he discussed the importance of the Night Traffic Hazards program currently sponsored by the Texas Safety Association and the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Col. Tilley said, "that from Oct. through March, one-third of all pedestrian deaths occur between 5 and 8 p. m., hours that are usually dusk or dark during these months. He blamed a combination of darkness and carelessness.

"Unfortunately, we can't change the laws of nature," he said. "Darkness is here to stay. But we can do something as far as human nature is concerned. Many pedestrians meet their deaths in night traffic because of their own thoughtless walking habits."

He warned pedestrians that it is difficult for motorists to see them at night and urged them to observe the following safe walking rules:

1. Always walk on the sidewalk. If you must walk on roads that have no sidewalks, walk on the left shoulder of the road facing traffic. Wear light colored clothing or carry a flashlight or a piece of white or reflectorized material.

2. Always assume that the driver can't see you. Never cross a street or highway unless you are absolutely certain you have ample time to reach the other side in complete safety.

"Cyclists are in pretty much the same boat as pedestrians in the night traffic picture," Col. Tilley said. "Like pedestrians, they also are at a great disadvantage in any encounter with a car. So it's just good common sense for them to be constantly on the defensive. Here are some tips for safe cycling at night:

"1. A good headlight and tail light (or reflector) are musts.

"2. Add more visibility by trimming your bike with white stripping or some type of reflectorized material.

"3. Wear light colored clothing or something trimmed with reflectorized material.

"4. Ride on the right side of the road, with traffic.

"5. Obey all traffic laws."

HEALTH INSURANCE

A new high in the number of voluntary insurance plans, covering hospital, surgical and medical costs was reached in the U. S. last year, according to a report of the Health Insurance Council. Cash benefits from voluntary health protection exceeded two billion dollars in 1952. About half of the amount went to help meet the cost of hospitalization, more than a fourth went for operations and doctor's bills, and the remaining fourth represented benefit payments by insurance companies replacing lost income due to sickness.

MORE JOB CUTS

The Government intends to trim its payrolls by 100,000 more jobs but actually fire less than one-half that number, according to Philip Young, chairman, Civil Service Commission. The reduction, to be made by next June 30, will be accomplished mostly by not filling vacancies that come up in the normal turnover of personnel. The total Federal work force would be down to 2,421,000 as compared with 3,700,000 on June, 1945, the high point in Government employment.

BIGGEST TAX BILL

San Francisco, Cal. — It might interest the residents of other states to learn that California paid the biggest State tax bill of any state in 1952. The total for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1953, was $1,300,620,792, up 3.6 per cent from the previous year.

OFF-SHORE OIL LAW TEST

The State of Alabama has asked the U. S. Supreme Court to rule on the constitutionality of the new Federal law assigning ownership of off-shore oil lands to individual states, thus becoming the first state to take this action. Alabama charges that the law denies her equal rights with neighbor states to Gulf coast fisheries.

Both Political Parties Look to '54 Elections

The 1954 elections, which will determine the political fate of all the members of the House and one third of the members of the Senate, are more than a year away. But to all practical purposes the campaign is underway now. As U. S. News & World Report put it, members of both parties "are issuing statements, making speeches, holding rallies, setting up party organizations, working as if the voting were to be this year instead of next."

In this early stage of the game, the Democratic leaders are the more aggressive, which is pretty much to be expected—the party which is out of power and trying to get back in always carries the battle to the enemy. Another reason for it is found in the character and attitude of Mr. Truman, who is a firm believer in knock-down-and-drag-out tactics so far as political wars are concerned—the kind of tactics which brought him his wholly unexpected victory in 1948.

Actually, of course, Mr. Stevenson is the titular head of the Democratic Party. If he wants the nomination again and works for it, the chances are he will get it. But Mr. Stevenson is not the "give 'em hell" type. He does not see everything in blacks and whites as Mr. Truman does, and he does not argue that the Democrats are all on the side of the angels while all Republicans are the devil's disciples. Indeed, there are a number of fields—foreign policy being one—where it is hard to find any basic differences between the views of Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Eisenhower. So, when it comes to the heavy line-plunging, Mr. Truman is filling the fullback spot.

An excellent preview of things to come was provided in Mr. Truman's Detroit speech on Labor Day. He gave unrestricted praise to the achievements of the Democrats during the 1932-52 period, saying, "We stopped wild speculation. We taxed in accordance with the ability to pay. We enacted minimum-wage laws and social-security laws. We helped agriculture and small business. We moved to develop the great natural resources of the country in the interest not of a few exploiters but of all the people . . . We saw to it that the American labor movement got an even break." Then, naturally he denounced the acts of the new administration in equally unequivocal terms.

The Republicans have not yet brought out their biggest guns to present their case. But the general line they will take is easily detailed. Their principal arguments, in the view of U. S. News, will include the following:

Under their leadership the Korean shooting was stopped; they are ridding the government of Communists who infiltrated in great numbers and to high places under the Democrats; they are restoring an honest dollar, and will bring about a balanced budget; states' rights, which were in danger of being totally destroyed by the concentration of power in Washington, are being restored; the socialistic trend begun by Roosevelt and carried on by Truman is being stopped and free enterprise encouraged; at long last, integrity is again the symbol of government.

That this campaign will be fought hard goes without saying. The Republican majority in the Senate is tissue thin, and a switch of but eight seats would give the Democrats control of the House. As of this moment, and largely due to the President's enormous and apparently undiminished personal popularity, the political writers generally are forecasting that the GOP will keep its control, and perhaps somewhat improve its Congressional position. But anything can happen in 13 months.

Opinions Given By Attorney General of Texas

AUSTIN: Attorney General John Ben Shepperd has released a list of all opinions of his office during the month of September. The office received 196 requests for advice or opinions and closed 194 opinion files during the month.

The office has won 97 per cent of all cases tried or appealed since the first of the year. A total of 959 cases have been won out of 988 tried. During the month of September 41 cases were tried, none of which were lost.

Opinions of general interest included the following:

A veteran is not entitled to register in Texas schools as a "resident" simply because he was stationed in Texas for one year. However, if he moved his family to Texas or bought a home in this State, the school receiving his application for enrollment should consider these facts in deciding whether or not he is a resident of Texas and therefore entitled to use the smaller registration fee.

The county service officer, county librarian, county health officer, county health nurse, deputy county clerks, deputy sheriffs and deputy county tax collectors are county employees and are covered by the County Workmen's Compensation Act.

The county agricultural agent and the county home demonstration agent are State employees and are not included by the County Workmen's Compensation Act. However, they are covered by the Federal Workmen's Compensation Act.

The county welfare case worker employed by the commissioners' court to help determine which persons should receive county support as paupers, idiots or lunatics, is a county employee, and as such is covered by the County Workmen's Compensation Act.

Tank trucks used by farmers to haul water over public highways are entitled to the 50 per cent reduction in registration fees as farm trucks. Their drivers must have driver's licenses, and if their gross weight exceeds 6,000 pounds, the drivers are required to have commercial operator's licenses.

The University of Texas may air-condition its existing buildings.

The county commissioners' court may contract with a city within the county to operate fire-fighting equipment owned by the county. This equipment may be used to protect rural areas in the county. The city may use such equipment within the city limits an extent equal to the services rendered the rural areas.

State legislative restrictions on travel expense do not apply to officers and employees of the Texas Employment Commission, if they travel under regulations approved by the proper federal agency. The Commission may also authorize reimbursement for laundry, cleaning and pressing, and tips by issuing appropriate regulations.

Just Between You, Me . . .
. . . and the Gatepost

By Lawrence Hunnicutt

Those who attended the movie at the Olympic Wednesday evening got the treat of seeing the show on a huge screen and the brilliant portrayal of the picture with a brand new lense. We got a preview of the giant screen Wednesday afternoon shortly after Charlie Donnell got it completed. The new lense showed up the background of the picture wonderfully. One of the things that was so annoying about ordinary movies was the fuzzy, dim background of the picture.

The new lense brings out the background of the picture sharp and clear. You see the details that were obscured in the pictures shown through the ordinary type of lense. It seems that the movies are making some wonderful advancements now that they are being pushed by the television people.

Among the other people at the Wednesday giant screen, new lense preview were Charlie's wife, Mrs. Donnell, Bill Sternenberg, Jack Jennings, and Charlie Donnell working the projector.

The Canyon people really turned out for the football game Friday between the Eagles and the Hornets at Tulia. It was beautiful football weather and about the only thing lacking was Rex Reeves in the press box. Although the Eagles played as though they were wearing boxing gloves, they took the game easily enough. It was the fourth game of the season and the third victory for the Eagles. They had a little hard luck down at Memphis the week before and dropped the game there in the final eight minutes of play.

If you get the opportunity to see some of the movie shots of the game that Roy Byrd, Jr., took from the press box, be sure and see them. There were some very good plays made between the Eagles and Hornets, and Byrd, with the help of Supt. Joe Gibson, got some excellent pictures, we think.

James E. Miller, principal of the high school, and George Cristy, one of the teachers on the faculty, were along Friday night. Both enjoyed the game immensely and on the way home listened in on the Amarillo-Plainview game. It sounded as though the Plainview crew almost scared the pants off Amarillo but lacked five points tying the Sandies. Mr. Miller explained that teaching was a wonderful occupation and that no matter how long you teach, you'll always find something new happening.

By way of the local grapevine we hear that some of the Canyon housewives would like to get a system of exchanging recipes. We are receptive to the idea and would like to try running one recipe each week in the column. Send your favorite recipe to The Canyon News, and be sure to mark it, for "Just Between You, Me and the Gatepost." We'll run it as the favorite recipe of: and the name of the sender will follow. It should work into a good trading post for cooking ideas for local housewives.

In a chance meeting with Pat Baber last week, a page of quips changed hands. You might not like the results but they came to rest right where they will end up in this column. They are appropriately termed JOLTS, and that may be just what this column needs.

Jolt No. 1, we love to have a man come right out and say what he thinks, as long as he agrees with us.

JUVENILE SECRETARY

A businessman, phoning an associate at home, was answered by a child. "Tell him that Mr. Brown called," he said.

"Wait till I get a pencil and paper," the child replied, then, "How do you spell Brown?"

"B-R-O," the man began. Then there was a labored silence. Finally the difficulty was explained.

"How," asked the child, "do you make a 'B'?"

FOR WOMEN DRIVERS ONLY

"Well, dear," sighed the head of the house, after viewing the crumpled fender, "did the officer scold you for driving upon the boulevard?"

"No, he was just lovely, John," explained the new driver. "He said the city really planted those 1,260 trees along Ash St. just to keep lady drivers from getting up on people's front porches."

Of the men and horses involved, only one horse survived the Custer Massacre.

Uncle Sam Goes After Non-Tax Payments of USA

When a tax collector says he wants to make you richer, that's news. But Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews really means it.

He intends to make both you and Uncle Sam richer by collecting what is due from those who haven't paid what they owe. That's the fundamental reason why Mr. Andrews set up the door-to-door canvassing system which began in New England and will be extended to other parts o fthe country.

During an interview with Taxpayer's Dollar, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Mr. Andrews disclosed complete figures for the New England survey.

"Our collectors," Mr. Andrews said, "covered one-sixth of 1 per cent of the tax-payers in New England. They interviewed 8.800 people, found 13 per cent of them non-filers, collected $80,000 directly, and received $320,000 more in voluntary contributions from people who had not been canvassed. Thus we collected $400,000 through the survey at a cost of only $10,000 and returns are still coming in. There is reason to believe that this ratio of 40 to 1 might be maintained in the majority of other areas to be surveyed during the rest of the year."

Most of the tax delinquency so far turned up is inadvertent, Mr. Andrews said. But he pointed out that right now all of us are paying more taxes than we should because others do not pay at all or do not pay enough. He added that the Internal Revenue Service will work unceasingly to correct this situation.

"We are going to make Uncle Sam—and you—richer," he said.

The royal governor of Massachusetts appointed the first licensor of the press in 1662.

Are You Eligible?

Do you know how important eligibility is? Eligibility is one of the stones in the foundation of your character.

The qualifications for eligibility are:

A. Scholarship

1. Must have passed in all subjects the preceding semester.

2. Must have no failing grades for the current semester, to date.

B. Citizenship

1. Must not have a truancy this year or last, (not even one period).

2. Must not have more than six unexcused tardies the preceding semester, nor more than three the current semester.

3. Must not have been convicted of a major disciplinary infraction last semester no rthis.

4. Must not be a member of any secret fraternity or sorority.

5. Must be a student of good attitudes who sincerely desires to cooperate with the faculty and his fellow students in building up a stronger school loyalty, morale, and spirit through constructive effort and thought rather than by destructive criticism and fault finding."

These qualifications are high, but that is the way it should be. High qualifications make better leaders, and better leaders make a better school. And a better school is not just what the students are trying to achieve but what the whole community is trying to achieve.

A good citizen and student should always strive to be eligible, not only for his school but for himself. If he is ineligible it is a black mark upon his permanent record. The principal of the school might be approached some time about your record for the entrance of a college or about a job. Would your record speak for you or against you?

If you are ineligible for office it is not the principal's, or the sponsor's, or the school board's fault. It is your own. You were the truant or you were the one that didn't study. It's nobody's fault but your own. You were the one that made yourself ineligible.

School Creed

I believe in Canyon High School as a place of opportunity. I believe in its reputation for honest work, fair play, and sincere interest in the youth of my community. I believe in the idea proclaimed in its motto, "Knowledge, Loyalty, Honor, Courage, Service." I believe in its worthy ideals; clean sportsmanship, high scholarship, true friendliness and respect for others, obedience to law, and cordial cooperation with the faculty, administration, and student body.

I, therefore, believe it is my duty to my school to support it loyally and to defend it against all opposition.

Seniors Purchase 1954 Class Rings

Money minded seniors saved $4 on their class rings this year. This savings was made possible for each member of the class by renewing the contract with the Starr Engraving Company for another four year period.

On Monday, September 28, Joe Black, representative of the Starr Engraving Company, took measurements for the rings.

The rings are due to arrive before Christmas. Samples of the traditional rings are displayed in the show case in the main hall.

Freshmen Suffer Initiation Tradition

Dig those crazy ear rings. Do you smell a foul odor? Messy, aren't they? Gee, who is it? Drop dead!

Hardy freshmen suffered two days last week as the seniors took them through the annual initiation.

All sorts of unusual costumes were worn by the fish. Some of the boys made the cutest little girls. A few of the fish must have been cold for they wore their dad's 'long-handles!'

The girls' hair wasn't combed very well. They had mouse traps, pigtails, clothes pins, bobby pins, and all sorts of odds and ends in their hair.

Most of the fish have aches and pains after all the "Drop deads" they had to fall for. They were surely glad to hear that "resurrection" being called out.

Friday there was an assembly at which many fish performed. A court was held by the seniors and fish were convicted of various crimes during initiation and were punished by being made to perform for the assembly.

Greeley's New York Tribune was the first newspaper in America to recognize Charles Dickens as a great writer.

Eight Instructors Join CHS Faculty

Joining Canyon Public Schools for the first time are eight new instructors. Four of these instructors are teaching in the Canyon Grade School. The other four are teaching in the fields of math, history, business education, and sports in the high school.

Ray C. Wells, formerly superintendent of schools in Kirkland, teaches Algebra I, Algebra II, and Plane Geometry in CHS.

Lawrence Brotherton teaches world history and girls' physical education in CHS. He comes from Gruver where he was superintendent of the schools.

Oscar H. Schuette, previously with Ralls High School, teaches typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping in CHS.

Guy Harrison taught general science and was "B" team coach at Phillips last year. This year, in Canyon High School, he is "A" team coach and teaches general science.

Mrs. Rex Reeves, who substituted last year, is teaching the first grade at Canyon Grade School as a regular faculty member this year.

Mrs. Duane Howard teaches second grade in Canyon Grade School. This is not only her first year in Canyon but also her first year in teaching.

Mrs. R. D. Wheelock, who taught in the grade school at Happy last year, is teaching fourth grade in Canyon Grade School.

Luther Lawless teaches math and science to the 5th and 6th grades in Canyon Grade School. His last teaching position was in Horace Mann School in Amarillo.

CHS Students Purchase Policy

There were 585 students of Canyon Public Schools who subscribed for dollar a year insurance.

All accidental injuries which occur during school hours, or while going directly to and from school are covered by this insurance. This includes all physical education, playground, shop, or other school activities, except interscholastic athletics which must be insured separately.

The policy pays up to $500 for medical, surgical and nurses fees, and hospital charges, with a limit of $50 maximum for dental injuries. It also contains a $1,000 Accidental Death Benefit.

When an injury occurs, the student must contact Stevenson Investment Agency, company representatives, immediately after leaving the doctor's office.

FHA-FFA Hayride Highlights Picnic

"Ouch! I do wish they would take these bumps a little easier!" was an expression often heard at the annual FHA and FFA hayride sponsored by the Future Homemakers on Tuesday, September 29.

The hayride started from the high school at 5:30 p. m. and ended at Wright's ranch. Baseball was played and many hayriders went hiking. Hot dogs, with all the trimmings, doughnuts and soft drinks were served. Chaperones were Mrs. Clara B. Long, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Penick, T. L. Devin, and Waylon Carroll. Approximately 100 people were present.

Alma Mater

Our hearts are filled with gladness and pride in Canyon High.
We'll play the game the live-long day,
Dishonor ne'er draws nigh,
We'll spend our lives in serving
For she has taught us how.
So here's our pledge, we'll give our best
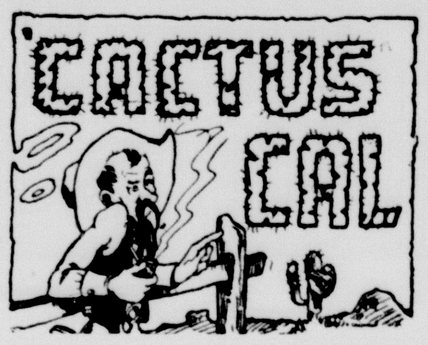
For Canyon High School now.

College Students Start Vocations

Have you noticed any strange faces in your classes lately? Well, if you have, it probably is a student teacher from West Texas State College.

Working with Miss Ada V. Clark is Pat Walton and Anita Tooley. Louise Boyles is working with Mrs. Lillian Graham in the physical education department. Sidney Burgess has under his supervision Joel Peterson and Uel Wise.

Joyce Adkins and Marharett Reid are the student teachers working with Oscar Schuette. David Lee Evans and Jim Harris are working with Herman Demus and Eddie Conner respectively. Jim Peggram is under Waylon Carroll and T. L. Devin's supervision.



Well kids, ole Cal's back for another year at good ole CHS. Hear they started school with a bang down at Podunk high. Shot the teacher.

The lidor's gone from the halls now. In case you're wonderin' that's lipstick plus odor. Some of those fish shore did look funny. I'd swear (not nice is it) some of those things were fugitives from a science fiction book. Cal likes those huchie-guchie dances out on the steps. That should go on all year.

Been seein' some strange girls around. Not very pretty and their legs are too hairy, but I guess they'll do. Noticed some old people with white beards too. Must be dumb to be in school that long. Ought to take up a collection for them poor people what have to wear paper sacks for shoes. Makes the school look bad. Some of those freshman girls wear too much lipstick. Make good fudge though.

Remember the pass word for this week, "Beat Dalhart!"

Those juniors are doin' good with their magazines. Sold over $1000 the first day. At the end of the second day they had $1500 and still quite a spell to go.

Guess I'd better be mosin' along. Here comes a junior with a look in his eye.

Magazine Sales Are Going Strong

Eagles Win Over Hornets in Spite Of 10 Penalties

Canyon's Eagles took their third game of the season Friday night in Tulia's Younger Field in a game loaded with penalties and punctuated throughout with fumbles on both sides. The Eagles, whose fumbles made them look as if their claws had been clipped and manicured, took the lead early in the game and never lost it. The final whistle found them with 27 points chalked up to 6 for the Hornets.

Don Beck scored first when he intercepted a pass intended for Tulia's Shot Hutson. He scampered 39 yards for the six points but the conversion failed, and so the score was 6 for the Eagles, 0 for the Tulia eleven.

The second quarter was Canyon's best. R. A. Burgess tallied the second Eagle TD a short time after the Hornets bogged down, lost the ball on a punt that didn't get them out of trouble. The Eagles converted this time to run their score up to 13.

Third touchdown for the Eagles came in the same quarter when Arlen Ruthart hit Jamie Airhart with a 15-yard pass. The conversion kick was good, and the score stood 20-0.

Although the Eagles made another touchdown and extra point in the third quarter, it was really the Hornets who showed the aggressiveness. This was the quarter in which they racked up more first downs, completed more passes and gained more yardage than the Eagles.

In the final period of play the Hornets worked the ball down to the goal line and after a hard fight Hudson pushed over the final one yard for the only Hornet score. He tried running the extra point but failed to tally.

There were 14 fumbles. The Eagles fumbled six times and recovered two of their fumbles. The Hornets fumbled eight times and recovered two of them. The Eagles were penalized ten times for 105 yards, the Hornets three times for 15.

Official Memorandum

BY

ALLAN SHIVERS

Governor of Texas

AUSTIN, TEXAS

GREETINGS:

Freedom of Information is the inspiring theme for National Newspaper Week this year. Americans are being reminded that "an informed press means an informed people" and that newspapers are important to every community and every individual.

The President of the United States has declared that the journalists of our country "are custodians of a majestic trust, a solemn responsibility; to help arm our people with the knowledge and understanding without which free choice, free government, free men could not be."

A free press always has been a part of the tradition of Texas as well as of the rest of the United States. Our State Constitution provides that: "Every person shall be at liberty to speak, write or publish his opinions on any subject, being responsible for the abuse of that privilege; and no law shall ever be passed curtailing the liberty of speech or of the press."

This basic freedom has been lost in so much of the world that it must not be taken for granted here. Once compromised, it would not be easily regained.

THEREFORE I, as Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby designate the period October 1 - 8, 1953, as and urge that all citizens give thoughtful attention to the importance of newspapers in the lives of our people, our communities, our State, and our nation.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 1st day of October, 53

Allan Shivers

Governor of Texas

1000 Years Printing Being Celebrated

This year marks the 1000th anniversary of the printing of the first books. These books—nine classical Chinese works—first appeared in July, 953, shortly after the invention of printing in China.

They were sponsored by a famous Chinese statesman, Feng Tao, who appealed directly to the emperor he was serving. "During the Han dynasty," he wrote to the emperor, "the classics were engraved on stone tablets. If they should be edited, engraved upon wood and printed, this would be a great benefit for the study of literature."

Printing in China preceded Gutenberg's invention by almost 500 years.

The meeting, to be held in the auditorium of the State Department of Health, will open at 10 a. m. on Monday, October 19, and last through the following day.

State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox, long-time champion of Texas' oldsters, promised that operators who attend will hear an outstanding panel of speakers cover the various problems associated with running a nursing home.

Specifically urged to attend are home operators who have been granted a temporary license under terms of the nursing home licensing law passed by the last legislature.

Subjects to be discussed during the two-day meeting include an interpretation of the licensing law; medical and nursing services in nursing homes; sanitation and building standards; the problems of nutrition among the aged; and general standards, rules and regulations of acceptable operation.

Dr. Cox calls the problem of handling aged citizens "one of the most pressing facing our leaders today."

"These people belong to a generation which time is shoving harshly aside," the health official said. "They deserve something better than to be forgotten."

The State Legislature apparently agrees with that sentiment. During its last session, a mandatory licensing law was enacted for all nursing and convalescent homes.

Designed to raise the standard of care given home residents, the law gives the State Department of Health authority to inspect all homes for health, safety and humane treatment of all residents.

Failure to comply means loss of license, without which the home must close its doors.

Attendance at the October 19 meeting will acquaint home operators with what is expected of them, said Dr. Cox.

Korean Lad Expresses His Appreciation

Miss M. Moss Richardson and Mrs. Art Barnett of White Deer have adopted an orphan in Korea to sponsor through the Christian Children's Fund. Mrs. Barnett supplies the money. Miss Richardson buys the gifts and supplies and writes the letters to the lad.

Following is a letter of appreciation from this 12-year-old boy who does not write or read English. Both his original letter and the translation were sent to Miss Richardson.

"Dear my mother:

How are you doing my mother: Here I am living very by the warm loveness of God, Home Mother's favor and your taking care of me kindly.

I'm Much thanking to you that you sent me a package which involved a sweater, candy and skating set.

As I am so delighted at your sponsoring, so I took my pen to express my thanking mind to my mother Moss.

Though I was an orphan, I am getting favors as well as if I have my parents.

"How you busy about you? When I could hear your letter in Korean by Secretary, I thank you more and my head are down respectfully to God. And my aunt gave some money for me, I appreciate it deeply. Please, Give my words to her.

Now is our summer vacation, we are going to swin every day. After lunch, we hear the bell ringing. Then we gather in range and go to the seaside by the direction of Secretary of this Home. In the way to the seaside we sing very merrily. I didn't know how to swim. That Secretary took me into the deep water and taught me how to swim. Now, I am pretty well to swim as well as others can do.

He is very good man and taught us gymnastics, and when I have your letter, he is the man who translate into Korean to me. Among many letters mine is best of all, I think.

My Mother! I want to be a big man growing more fast in order to a pillar to reconstruct our native land, and I made mind up to help the poor.

In here, I play harmonica very well. But, as I haven't got it, I borrow it from my friend. I can play many other joyful and sorrow songs with it.

In closing, I give my prayers to God, and be repay to you a thousand and million times the things which are give to me.

Yours lovely son,
Kin Ul Sup
Adoption No. 10145
Home No. 18"

In the accompanying letter J. Calvitt Clarke, executive director of the Fund, says, "I hope that the letter will give you at least a small fraction of the pleasure that your kind help and attention has given your little adoptee.

"That would still be a very great deal of pleasure for it is just impossible to tell you how proud and happy the children are to have this loving contact with you, their sponsors. 'You have never even seen us and yet you love us,' so many of them say.

"A sense of miracle that will, no doubt, live in their young hearts for all the days to come!"

NO BURN

The woman was complaining to her neighbor about her husband's silly extravagances. To prove her point finally and conclusively, she led the way down the cellar stairs and pointed to a fire extinguisher attached to the wall.

"There," she said, "just look at that! It cost him 25 dollars, and he hasn't even used it once!"

TOO EARLY

The housewife was exasperated — and rightfully so — when the plumber finally rang and inquired about the stopped-up laundry tubs.

"It's about time you showed up," she snapped. "I phoned you five days ago, on the 10th."

"I guess I must have the wrong house," said the plumber starting to leave. "The party I'm looking for phoned ten days ago, on the 5th."

USSR and US Delegates Shun Each Other at the United Nations

By EDWARD H. SIMS

United States delegates to the United Nations Eighth General Assembly here in New York are steering clear of their Russian counterparts. Although they are seated only a few feet from the Russian delegates, during the first week of the Assembly session, not a member of the U. S. delegation was observed to have shaken hands with USSR delegates.

This reporter asked one of the U. S. delegates in New York, after the first week of business, if relations between the two delegations were cordial. He replied that as far as he knew not a member of the delegation had spoken to the Russians.

The U. S. policy, he explained, was to ignore the Russians, although there was no ironclad rule against shaking hands with them if a condition arises in which such a formality were requested by ordinary rules of courtesy.

It will be interesting, however, to see which delegate first extends his hand, if such a social occasion arises. It might be noted here that at least three of the U. S. delegates have met some of the Russian officials on previous occasions. They are Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Permanent Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr.

Once former Senator Lodge refused to shake hands with the Russians at a U. N. meeting and, naturally, delegates of both countries have been cautious about such matters since. Feeling between the Russian fabricators and Americans sometimes runs high but as yet no awkward scene has resulted.

The British delegates are the only ones separating the Russians and Americans in the General Assembly seating arrangement. This is true because delegations are seated in alphabetical order, the USSR, UK and USA coming in that order in the seating.

Asked about the Russian line of reasoning in the U. N., a U. S. delegate described it as both "ridiculous and absurd." And when asked whether he thought the Russian speakers actually believed all they said about the West, he replied: "It's hard to believe they think all that is true."

The historian Rhodes declared that no single man in his time influenced so many people as Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune.

Noah Webster founded the American Minerva in New York in 1739 with the assistance of Alexander Hamilton.

The first daily newspaper in the United States was established in 1784.

Latest Rumors From Political Front of Nation

Donald Maclean and Guy Burgess, Britain's missing diplomats, are known by U. S. intelligence sources to be in Czechoslovakia, advising and working with Communist leaders in their diplomatic and propaganda campaign against the United States.

President Eisenhower is biting very cautiously on the proposal that he launch an "Operation Candor," designed to scare the American people about hydrogen-bomb dangers so they'll vote huge defense funds. Mr. Eisenhower is aware that "Operation Candor" would become "Operation Panic" in Europe, driving Europeans to a deal with Russia out of fear of the bomb in Russia's hands.

Gen. Curtis LeMay today is the man most responsible for this country's safety. General LeMay heads the Strategic Air Command that is on alert every minute of the year, ready to strike if Russia should challenge this country to an atom war.

William Knowland, California Senator and Republican Senate Leader, is a little concerned by the way Mr. Eisenhower is building up Richard Nixon, another Californian, who is Vice President. Involved is the fact that California more and more is a key State in which men can dream of political lightning that might strike to put them in the White House.

Mr. Eisenhower's strategy from now on will be to go over the heads of labor leaders, aiming his appeal directly to workers. When Martin Durkin resigned as Secretary of Labor he signaled a break between the White House and professional unionists.

George Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, is somewhat surprised at the amount of opposition from Republicans in Congress to so much as a White House recommendation for a new sales tax in any form. The growing pressure in Congress is for more severe spending cuts, rather than for new taxes that will permit high or rising expenditures.

The idea is being advanced that an adjustment in business, which officials say is starting, should be called a "recovery," not a setback. This adjustment is pictured as a "recovery" from a long period of inflation and economic ill-health in which the dollar lost about half of its value.

Homer Capehart, Indiana Senator and Banking Committee chairman, is not making too much progress with his plan to center power in the Senate in a policy-forming group of committee chairmen. The idea is to take the making of Republican policy from a group now friendly to the White House, and give the policy making to a group that does not always see eye to eye with the President, particularly on foreign policy.

Men who help to write speeches for President Eisenhower now are aware that the President likes to talk in borad terms, not be too specific in language or use words that are exciting in themselves.

Mr. Eisenhower is giving no thought to the idea of a special session of Congress. He is convinced that the country is enjoying its vacation from active politics and is not worried because Congress is not on hand to create partisan arguments.

Clement Attlee, former British Prime Minister, who is leading the crusade to get Communist China into the United Nations, in the past helped to lead the fight to keep anti-Communist Spain out of the U. N.

John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State, still is putting all U. S. chips on eventual creation of a European Army, including German units. Mr. Dulles is not showing interest in the idea that this country can find safety in building its own air defenses through an "Operation Lincoln" and then withdrawing from Europe.

George Bidault, Foreign Minister of France, is toying with the old French idea of a revived alliance with Russia designed to hold down Germany. Some French politicians prefer this to a European Army with Germany in it.

The White House itself took a hand in the decision to return to its "rightful ownership" the MIG-15that was flown to United States lines by a North Korean pilot, who wins a $100,000 prize. It was an oversight that caused the reward offer to stand after the fighting stopped.

American diplomats are coming around to the view that India might be given a place in Korean peace talks if only the objections of Syngman Rhee, President of Korea, can be overcome somehow. President Rhee is convinced that the main object of the Indians is to help Communist China and to make trouble for South Korea.

Iron Curtain countries are having more trouble keeping hold of their diplomats than the world knows about. Some have quit in Paris on the way home from posts elsewhere. By breaking off there, they avoid publicity. France guarantees them anonymity.

No Drop in Business Foreseen By The Eisenhower Administration

The Eisenhower Administration does not consider the prospect for business bad at present, and the continued harpings of some business writers about the threat of a depression is dismissed as so much hokum.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey came out flatly in Washington the other day with the prediction that business prospects, in his estimation, were good — not bad. This view was seconded in a matter of days by Benjamin Fairless, chairman of the board of United States Steel Corporation.

Fairless said the country could "predict" itself into a recession if business became too cautious and failed to realize the continuing demand for goods.

Figures which reinforce the Humphrey-Fairless position are encouraging: Business volume this year will undoubtedly set an all-time record. The direct prediction for volume in 1954 places volume at about the same level it reached in 1952, last year. And last year was a generally prosperous year, with business volume recorded at 348 billion dollars.

The factor which seems to be throwing some prognosticators off the beam is the fact that there is not an unlimited market for automobiles, and appliances. But while the market is not unlimited, it is nevertheless good, and weak spots caused by over-production in some fields should not be confused as a sign of worsening business in general.

In the opinion of the economic leaders of the present administration, such an opinion is not justified. Nor is the fact that rearmament is being scaled down in some phases considered to be the warning of impending doom some writers attempt to make it.

The present administration, Humphrey recently explained, has plans prepared to deal with any threatening situation. However, the present business outlook is an encouraging one, and if firms go ahead and plan intelligently on the assumption a good market will prevail next year, no serious difficulties are expected.

In other words, those who have been looking for a depression ever since 1045 may have to look in vain for years to come.

"Small Town Newspaper Is Mirror Of Life in the USA," Says Hinkle

By OLIN E. HINKLE
Professor of Journalism
University of Texas

Life at the grassroots of America is nowhere mirrored with greater fidelity than in the small-town newspapers. And the thought life of the small-town editors is being revealed, week by week, in home-grown columns of wit, humor, pathos, sentiment, anecdotes, exhortations, apologies, and other items ranging from profoundest editorial opinion to just plain trivia.

These grassroots columnists — more than 8,000 of them — are turning out material of surprising quality. One has to read hundreds of columns, of course, to glean the quotable items. Small newspapers are mainly local and their home-grown columns are chiefly local. But, more and more, the small-town editors are writing comments of timeless wisdom and universal interest.

Columns and typical column materials are not new, but styles in such writing vary from generation to generation. There was a time when the "great editors" thundered in bad-humored editorials and were much admired for their courage. Reading their writings today, however, does not reveal the wisdom and tolerance which is now expected of editors. Today's readers are better educated and like to think for themselves. Today's editors reflect this new attitude of readers.

"These editors never are as mad as their grandfathers usually were," says John M. Henry, of the Des Moines (Ia.) Register and Tribune. "As a matter of fact, for today's country editors to depart from tolerant good humor is a rarity. That's one reason reading them is so delightful. Maybe it's this good humor plus their range of interests; anyhow, something makes them pleasant, philosophical, relaxed, and neighborly—and able to write that way. Always there's the certainty, however, that if they dislike something they will blast it to kingdom come. But that will be that, and it will be between good-natured quips."

Writing of these informal columns is marking the resurgence of personal journalism at the grassroots. Editors are learning again that readers want them to write from the heart.

Many small-town editors have found that their columns can perform the dual function of giving opinion and printing miscellany collected on their daily rounds of public buildings and stores. Such catch-all columns "accumulate." They reveal the editor's thoughts, humor — both heard and uttered — and ideas permitting him to share his belly-laughs and moments of inspiration with readers.

At the national level, professional columns developed amazingly during the depression and war years when people asked questions which could not be entirely answered at the local level. But the small-town columns have come along gradually and naturally for different reasons.

Of course people other than editors write columns. Some of the best authors are bakers, ministers, school teachers, farm wives, and others outside the newspaper families. And there are many kinds of columns, including sports, society, stamps, farming, etc.

But it is the "personal column" which has the broadest reader appeal. Its light touch gets full readership, but often a dropped hint or a direct appeal can get a terrific response from readers. In fact, readers like to respond and many columns are carefully planned so as to have promotion or project at regular intervals.

Column wit usually takes epigrammic form. Brief quotable bits are the matured wisecracks so frequently heard in this country. They are truisms of quick impact.

Says the Spencer, Iowa, Reporter: "There is undoubtedly a certain satisfaction to be had in having a lawn entirely carpeted with grass. But the pleasantest yards are those that show a little bare path worn somewhere between them and the neighbors."

Cynthiana, Ky., Democrat: "The trouble with a small town's alcoholics is that they are not anonymous."

Mineral Wells, Texas, News; "Rubbing elbows with a man will reveal things about him you never before realized. The same is true of rubbing fenders."

Ellaville, Ga., Sun: "In the country newspaper business you meet a lot of interesting people you already know."

Junction City, Kans., Republic: "A family can bear up under a cataclysmic tragedy and yet go to pieces when the water has to be turned off for a few hours."

Jacksonville, N. C., News and Views: "You are young only once. After that you have to think up some other excuse."

Washta, Iowa, Journal: "He may have a greasy hat and his trousers may be shiny, but if his children have their noses flattened against the windowpane a half hour before he is due home for supper, you can trust him with anything you have."

Waverly, Iowa, Bremer County Independent: "A foreigner visiting in the United States thought 'Oakie Doakie' was the feminine of O. K. He was, of course, mistaken. The feminine of O. K. is 'maybe'."

Overbook, Kans., Citizen: "The modern husband doesn't ask, "What's cookin'?" He leans on the deep freeze and says, "What's thawin'?"

Some columns prefer to squeeze humor from a single topic, which each week they kick around for several hundred words. Others create fictitious characters, which they quote with glee. Some like to share their space with contributors. The future of the small newspaper seems secure because people like to write it and read it.

Will Rogers is dead and well remembered. But there is a lot of wit and wisdom in the country Will came from. He would have loved it. It is free, and from the heart.

The first newspaper in the American colonies told its readers, "It is designed that the Countrey shall be furnished once a month (or if any Glut of Occurences happen, oftener,) with an account of such considerable things as have arrived unto our Notice."

Washington's Farewell Address was first presented to the American public in the columns of the Philadelphia Daily Advertiser.

The first newspaper published regularly was printed in Germany in 1609.

Chinese Are Withdrawing Troops From Korea—But For What Purpose?

It may be coincidence but, within a few days, the French announced they were reinforcing their army in Indo-China and the Chinese reported the withdrawal of two armies from North Korea. Moreover, two more Chinese armies are being readied to pull out of the Korean theater. The Chinese armies are small by comparison to U. S. armies and total only between 30,000 and 40.000 troops.

Where these Chinese armies are being sent was not announced, but the removal from Korea of about 150,000 first-line Chinese troops will enable the Communists to strengthen their forces in other parts of China and to send more troops to the Indo-China border, if they desire.

The troops coming from North Korea have been thoroughly tested in battle and the U. N. command admits they are efficient fighters.

Meanwhile, Admiral Arthur Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has issued a warning designed for Chinese ears, that any further aggression in Indo-China by the Chinese might bring about serious consequences.

The French decision to send more regular army troops to Indo-China came only after President Dwight Eisenhower okayed the transfer of these forces from Europe. Evidently, the U. S. command believes the situation in Europe is less critical than it has been for several years. For one thing, there are growing signs of general unrest in eastern Europe, especially in Poland, where the stream of prominent Poles seeking refuge from Communism continues to impress the world.

In addition, the NATO command is soon getting atomic artillery and some of the U. S. Army's latest weapons. This bolsters that front against Red aggression more than a few extra divisions would.

The Navy now has a device which determines the speed of planes approaching carriers for a landing. Though little has been heard about it, the problem of landing fast jets on carrier decks has caused considerable anxiety in some quarters. Since the latest jet planes used from carriers cost the government as much as $500,000 the loss of such aircraft, and the damage accidents do to the carriers is a serious consideration.

Jet planes have only a narrow air speed range in which they can land on carriers. Moreover, the problem of quickly accelerating speed is different in jets from what it was in the conventional engine planes.

Now that the Navy has the new device, an officer on the flight deck of a carrier can be informed of the speed of the approaching jet as it nears the carrier, and if that speed is dangerously high, or low, he can signal the necessary corrective instructions to the pilot at once.

In the Swedish war games, recently held off the coast of Sweden, that country's fighter planes were instructed to operate with live ammunition and to fire on any aircraft which attempted to interfere. This order is the result of incidents last year in which Russian aircraft shot down two Swedish planes.

At that time, the Swedish planes were unarmed. They were flying over international waters but the Russians said they were over Russian territorial waters when shot down. To avoid another defenseless loss, the Swedes gave their pilots orders to shoot if molested in the recent war games and they were not molested. This is a stiff attitude for the Swedes, whose traditional love of peace has kept them out of both world wars in the last 30 years.

An early patriot editor carried legal government notices in his newspaper free of charge, refusing to accept payment until finally George Washington thanked him for his generosity to the fledgling government and insisted that he accept pay.

The editor of an early Boston newspaper organized public meetings and demonstrations in favor of forming a United States with a Constitution. It is believed that his activities did much to cause Massachusetts to ratify the Constitution.

The first American newspaper, Publick Occurances, was started with the intent of "curing, or at least charming, of that spirit of lying which prevails . . . " in Massachusetts colony. It was suppressed after the first issue.

Benjamin Franklin, printer and editor, has been termed by one historian as "the one man of vision" in the colonial resistance of oppression.

The Boston Gazette, leading newspaper which espoused the cause of the American Revolution, never had more than 2,000 circulation.

James Franklin was the printer for the Boston Gazette, second newspaper in America, started in 1720. William Brooker was the editor.

The New England Courant, started by James Franklin in 1721, was supported editorially by a group known as the "Hell-Fire Club."

The public during the American Revolution acquired a vast respect for the press and for the principle of press freedom.

Important New Gas Savings
You'll never know how economical an automatic transmission can be until you try the 1953 Powerglide. Various improvements, including a more efficient use of engine power, make it extremely thrifty.

Great New Passing Ability
The car picks up pace in traffic or on the highway at the touch of a toe, for the '53 Powerglide has an added automatic passing range.

Smoothest No-Shift Driving at Lowest Cost

Safe Eyes-on-the-Road Driving
Powerglide permits you to concentrate on driving, with hands on the steering wheel and eyes on the road.

Full Engine Braking-Power on Hills
Powerglide's flexibility lets you cruise easily up any hill. And you enjoy constant engine braking power for maximum safety when descending.

Rock Out of Trouble
Powerglide's smooth power flow lets you rock out of sand, snow or mud whenever the need arises. "LOW" and "REVERSE" are side by side on the Powerglide quadrant, making the operation doubly easy.

Push-Proof Parking
Put the selector lever in "PARK" position when you leave the car, and a positive gear-type lock holds it in position until you return.
